

Near-Peer Advising

Theory of Change

- ▶ Teleservice
- ▶ Student Engagement
- ▶ Site Closures
- ▶ New Partnerships
- ▶ Expansion of Services

COVID-19 Changes

Great Stories

- ▶ “We have been zooming with students for the past three weeks and everytime we get to connect it reminds me why I pursued this position. Covid-19 has not only taken away their prom, sport games, graduations, and seniors night but it has also taken the resources from them. Up until ZOOM! I think it is nonetheless to say that we are extremely grateful to have a free platform to communicate with students. We not only get to help students academically but also mentally as we are constantly checking-up on them while also building a relationship.”

Great Stories

- ▶ “Looking back on this year I am very grateful for this opportunity to mentor students. Despite the circumstances along the way I am very happy to have served a large groups of students and I hope to have made a difference in their lives. I learned so much from my students, some of those things were to always have a great attitude even when life is difficult, to enjoy the present, and to work hard. There were many students who left their mark simply because they were themselves and they showed me that they wanted to have a better future. I identified with so many of them and always hoped that my work was making a difference. A lot of these students have their own difficulties in life and yet they are still working hard. Some of their problems are things that would normally bring people down but they still have a light shining in them and guiding them towards their goals. It was eye opening being able to serve the communities I served because even though I knew about some of their struggles there were so many more that I was not aware of. I always tried my best to be a positive impact in their lives and show them that I was rooting for them and that he could always count on me for anything. I had a lot of students reached out to me over these past few months and even after this service is over I will continue to be there for all these students.”